Confidentiality

The personal information you share with the counsellor will be kept confidential. Confidentiality continues after the end of the counselling relationship. There are, however, some exceptions to the counsellor's duty of confidentiality, in particular:

- 1. In the event of the client's expression of an intention to harm self or others*
- 2. If information is evident that you are neglecting or abusing a child or an incapacitated adult.*
- 3. In the event of subpoena issued for the appropriation of the therapist notes.*

Other limits to confidentiality include clinical supervision where the identity of the client is protected while only client situations are discussed.

All notes, copies of letters and reports executed on behalf of you, the client, during the therapeutic process are the sole property of the counsellor.

Payment Information

As set by the BCACC, one hour consists of a 50 minute session. Payment is expected at the end of each individual session unless otherwise arranged with the counsellor. You are also responsible for the full hourly fee for the writing of reports or other documentation, for telephone or online counselling, and for travel time, email, text or telephone communication.

Late arrivals

Clients understand that if they late for the appointment, they are still responsible to pay the counsellor the full fee for that appointment. Also, the session will end at the time it was initially supposed to end.

Cancelations

A 24-hour advance notice of cancellation is required. Because appointment times are reserved exclusively for you, you will be charged full fee for a late cancellation or missed appointment.

ONLINE CLIENT FOR DISTANCE THERAPY: I acknowledge that I am aware of the limitations inherent in ensuring client confidentiality of information transmitted through on-line or telephone therapy.

As an online client, I, therefore, waive the right of confidentiality with respect to confidential information transmitted through telephone or on-line counseling that may be accessed by any third party without authorization of you, the client, and despite the reasonable efforts of the counsellor to secure the distance counselling environment.
